The Surgical Services Department

The Surgical Unit consists of two wards 5B and 6B.

The General Surgery department is part of Bendigo Health's Surgical Services Directorate.

The Team consists of a number of General Surgeons, assisted by Registrars, who provide a wide range of services to both public and private patients, some of whom also provide services to Echuca and Castlemaine.

The Surgical Unit specialises in a range of conditions related to surgery including the pre and post-operative care of patients. The specialties include minor and major abdominal; ear, nose and throat (ENT); head and neck; facio-maxillary; urology; reconstructive; and thoracic surgery. In addition, the Surgical Unit plays a pivotal role in patient flow throughout the organisation and Loddon Mallee region by facilitating transfers to and from the Emergency Department, ICU, Recovery, other departments and other health facilities. The Complex Care room provides close monitoring and specialised care for patients with high clinical needs. Up to three patients can be admitted to this area, where a dedicated, experienced surgical nurse will care for them. This initiative has optimised the care the team are able to provide for acutely ill patients and has reduced the demand for high dependency beds in the Intensive Care Unit.

The Acute General Surgical Unit (AGSU) is an initiative to help streamline all general surgery emergency presentations. A dedicated team of both medical and nursing staff work within AGSU to expedite patients from the ED to theatre, or directly to the Surgical Unit as required. The multi-skilled team of health care professionals of the Surgical Unit aim for the best patient outcomes and a smooth transition from hospital to home, through our close links with community services and other care providers.
